

Dear Grote:

Honolulu December 12, 1962

Did you know that your name appears in the Science section of Time magazine dated December 14, 1962? It gives you credit as being the only person, initially, to pursue Jansky's investigations into the sources of cosmic radio noise, and identifies you as a radio ham of Wheaton, Illinois. There is a photograph of your "crude radio telescope, the world's first", and the article says it stands at the entrance of the National Radio Astronomy Observatory at Green Bank, West Virginia. How do you like that; you're famous!

Congratulations.

I mailed you a Christmas card yesterday with the recent news, so have nothing more to add. Aloha,

Charles
